

Statement of Need

Advances in medical imaging continue to occur quite rapidly, making the clinical practice of radiology extremely demanding. The information presented in this course familiarizes the participant with newly emerging material and provides opportunities to discuss and exchange ideas with the faculty. The program was conceived, developed, and structured as a result of the input from attendees of previous CME meetings and the need perceived by our faculty.

Target Audience

This educational activity has been designed to meet the needs of radiologists in general diagnostic practice who are determining which radiologic tests to order and how to evaluate and manage their patients.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this educational activity, learners should be able to:

1. Explain the role of CT perfusion imaging for patient selection regarding reperfusion therapy and best practice implementation of comprehensive stroke evaluation.
2. Outline a systematic approach to the diagnosis of fetal skeletal dysplasias and be able to construct a differential diagnosis from the US findings.
3. Recognize how to interpret bone mineral density exams to determine patient's fracture risk and be familiar with the FRAX and Trabecular Bone Score.
4. Comprehend how DOTATATE can be used as a theragnostic molecular agent in patients with neuroendocrine tumors.
5. Identify current imaging recommendations for special breast cases.
6. Summarize toxic and foreign body ingestion diagnosis and management.

Elements of Competence

This CE activity has been designed to change learner competence and focuses on the American Board of Medical Specialties' areas of medical knowledge, patient care and procedural skills, and practice-based learning and improvement.
